

INDORSES JOURNAL

COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION
COMMENDS ENTERPRISE.

Write-up of Pendleton and Umatilla County Will Go Into Thousands of Eastern Homes—Homeseekers and Visitors at St. Louis Fair Say the Greatest Need There Is More Western Literature—Write-up Will Be Given Free to Pendleton and Umatilla County.

The officers and members of the Commercial Association of Pendleton have indorsed the enterprise projected by the Oregon Daily Journal, of Portland, whose field correspondent, John E. Lathrop, is now in Pendleton for descriptive articles of Pendleton and Umatilla county to be incorporated in a special edition of the Journal which that paper proposes to issue soon. The Journal is making no charge for the space assigned or the expense of illustrations.

Since arriving in Pendleton, and looking over the ground, Mr. Lathrop has decided to broaden the scope of the plan, and, instead of printing merely two pages on Pendleton and vicinity, the Journal will devote an entire section of the paper to this county, and therein set forth comprehensively the resources and advantages to homeseekers.

The special edition will be sent to the East to selected lists of well-to-do people of all classes, mostly farmers, who have evinced an intention to come West and locate permanently.

The Journal asks no bonus for this work, conceiving that it is the legitimate function of a newspaper of statewide circulation to care for the interests of the people of all sections, confining its efforts to no one city or locality, but extending its energies to the remotest locality.

The space assigned, which will be several pages, will be given freely, and the expense of white paper, composition, illustrations and all the work of preparing the matter will be at the Journal's expense.

Text of the Indorsement.

The signed indorsement of the officers and managers of the Commercial Association, together with the signatures appended, secured today, are as follows:

"The Oregon Daily Journal of Portland, having sent to Pendleton a representative with instructions to prepare elaborate articles with complete illustrations setting forth the resources and advantages of Pendleton and Umatilla county, and having manifested a commendable spirit of liberality and a disposition to perform the legitimate functions of a newspaper published in the chief city of the state, by printing descriptive matter of the various regions of the state without charge for the space utilized, we, the subscribers hereto, members of the board of managers of the Commercial Association of Pendleton, unhesitatingly commend the project as calculated to forward the interests of the city and county.

"We suggest that, in order to utilize the proposed special edition and secure results commensurate with the effort and expense to be given by the Journal, it would be wise to see that a considerable number of copies are sent directly to known homeseekers in the East, as well as to the St. Louis exposition, where, according to statements by citizens who have returned therefrom, a heavy demand is met for literature concerning Oregon."

PILOT ROCK HAPPENINGS.

Two Telephone Lines Being Constructed—New School House Will Be Erected.

Pilot Rock, Oct. 18.—Glen Cannon is building a one-story cottage that will probably be ready for occupancy by the 19th of November. John Rorer is the contractor.

Doctors Parker and Hume will begin work on their residences in time for their completion by the first of January.

Work will begin on the new school house in a short time, the intention being to have it ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

Only one minister of the gospel has regular appointments at Pilot Rock now. That is Rev. Robert Diven, the Presbyterian, who preaches in the old Methodist church. Mr. Diven preaches here the first Sunday in each month. The absence of church-going facilities at Pilot Rock is commented upon by transients and newcomers very much. The residents have gotten used to this condition of affairs.

The poles are set for three miles north of town and are being placed rapidly in the direction of Pendleton for the new telephone line. The promoters of this new line are for the most part farmers along the line, and a few business men in this place. The subscribers are paying for the erection of the line by contributing labor and supplies, such as each furnishing a given number of poles and a certain amount of labor digging holes and setting the poles. All the necessary cash expenses are pro rated.

The new telephone line will connect with the Doug Belts independent line, which is about 12 miles beyond Pilot Rock, and which ends at his place.

NEW CLOTHING STORE.

Paul Strain, the Well Known Portland Merchant, Opens in Pendleton.

Paul Strain, manager of Strain's, the Hub and the Chicago, three of Portland's big clothing establishments, accompanied by W. Markkille, is in Pendleton today. Mr. Strain is traveling in the interests of his clothing houses.

"Pendleton is a wonderful little town," he said. "It is full of the push and ginger that go to make up a prosperous and enterprising community. Its business houses are thronged with customers, its hotels are filled and on every side new buildings are going up."

"I was surprised when I saw the city of Pendleton. I knew that it was a good town, but I did not come prepared to see the volume of business that is displayed in such a small place."

Mr. Strain and Mr. Markkille expect to be in Pendleton two or three days. During the past year Mr. Strain has advertised his establishments extensively throughout Western Oregon and Washington, and has a branch house in Astoria.

He has secured a three years' lease on the room formerly occupied by the Owl Tea House, and will at once open up a first-class clothing store.

NEW ART DEPARTMENT.

In Charge of an Expert, Madam Shibley, at the Peoples Warehouse.

The new art department at the Peoples Warehouse, is a beautiful and otherwise attractive place; not only a model of its class, but destined to be much more beautiful and attractive when moved, as it will be in a short time, into the new quarters on the second floor.

Madam Shibley, who is in charge has through this department introduced to the ladies of Umatilla county several very striking and popular novelties which have proven to be extremely popular in circles where the art spirit and esthetic tastes are most highly developed. Among the most unusual of these attractive innovations are the "English eyelet" embroidery work and the Norwegian or "hardanger" work, also a type of embroidery as rare as they are beautiful. Both these systems Madam Shibley teaches and has many samples of her own handiwork.

Madam Shibley also teaches pyrography, drawn work and all lace and embroidery work of the more common types, and is an all-round expert in art work of practically all kinds. She will give instructions in private and in public, and is now in charge, exhibiting a most attractive line of goods of her own handiwork besides a general line of merchandise of this class that has been imported from the East.

Madam Shibley was for 17 years located in Seattle, conducting classes in art work and handling these lines in the leading mercantile houses of that city.

TRAINS ARE CROWDED.

Albert Niebergall, of Walla Walla, Tells of the Rush of Homeseekers.

Albert Niebergall, of Walla Walla, who passed through Pendleton this morning, accompanied by his wife, on his return from St. Louis and a visit to New Jersey, declares that every train west is so crowded with homeseekers and returning World's Fair visitors that the railway companies find hard work accommodating them.

"I have been on the road a week," he said, "and was obliged to lay over in Salt Lake City owing to the crowded trains. I understand travel on the Southern Pacific is much heavier and that the railroad has quit attempting to handle all the people."

Is Seeking Health.

Tylus Kensinger, of Elgin, Kan., an M. E. minister, arrived last night and will go to Alba and beyond, where he will visit with old friends, the Cornells, who came into that country last spring. Mr. Kensinger comes West for his health, and will spend the winter in this county and in the Palouse. In the spring, after the rainy season is over on the Sound, he will go to Seattle, where he has two sons who are attorneys. Mr. Kensinger's intention is to invest in a small fruit farm upon concluding to remain in this section of country.

Arrival of Madam Shibley.

Madam Shibley, the director of the new art department of the Peoples Warehouse, arrived Friday last and took charge of her duties Monday morning. In a few days the department will be moved from the first to the second floor, where it will have an abundance of room and great profusion of light. Madam Shibley's residence for the present is at the Hotel Ickers, where she receives callers and also clients interested in the art work which she handles.

In Pendleton During the '80s.

L. B. Waite, of Connorville, Ind., arrived on last night's train. Mr. Waite's first introduction to Pendleton was in 1887, when he helped drive a drove of cattle here from the interior. A few months afterward he took up government land a few miles northwest of Pendleton, upon which he lived one season, and then came to town and ran a dray for a short time. He made his home with C. C. Lanpher, on West Alta street. The Lanphers now live in Helena.

The Baptist Reception.

The sweeping invitation to the general public to attend the reception to-night, given by the B. Y. P. U., at the Baptist church, was an error made by the reporter. Only the members of the church and the congregation, are asked to come. All these are urged to be there, and are promised a really memorable social event.

Last Sheep Shipments.

A trainload of sheep will be shipped from here in a short time, which will probably end the shipping season in this county for this year. In a short time a trainload of sheep will be sent East from Heppner, which will close the buying season in Morrow county.

First Snowfall.

The first snowfall of the season fell last night and yesterday afternoon at Kamela and Meacham. O. R. & N. cars coming down the mountain this morning had a slight trace of snow on top of the cars. The snowfall is about two weeks earlier than usual.

Transferred to Cello.

Edward Hansen, who has been for the past six months a timekeeper for the O. R. & N. at La Grande, has been transferred to the Cello, where he will work for the company in the same capacity.

Moved to Cheney.

Alva Pierce, of Vansycle, has rented his farm to Ernest Kinman and moved to Cheney, Wash., where his children will attend the Washington State Normal College.

Chicken Dinner.

Chicken dinner at Christian church Thursday, 22, from 11 to 2.

The Sassafras Tree.

The sassafras of North America is found from Canada to Florida and west of Kansas and Texas. It sometimes attains a height of 100 feet. The three-lobed, thick-growing leaves give it an attractive appearance. The flowers are yellow in color and the tree bears a small, dark blue fruit.

The wood is soft, light, coarse-fibered, colored dirty white or reddish brown. Its strong, aromatic smell is very agreeable to most people, and the spongy bark of the root is much sought for, as it contains oil of sassafras, greatly favored by confectioners for flavoring purposes.

The leaves are also used for flavoring soup and are valuable because of the abundant mucilage they contain.

WHITE MAN'S SIN WRONGS INDIAN

WHISKY PEDDLING AN UNMITIGATED CURSE.

Charles M. Robinson Bitterly Condemns Practice of Selling Whisky to Indians—Says More Hell in One Small Spot in Pendleton Than Anywhere Else on Earth—Enough Work Here to Keep Reformers Employed for Years to Come.

Speaking of the increased sale of liquor to Indians in this city, Charles M. Robinson, chief clerk at the Umatilla agency, in writing to Rev. C. E. Battelle of this city, says:

"Of one thing I am sure: There is a great work for a willing reformer in Pendleton. Our Indians become maudlin drunk there. Some of the saloons have tables in the rear, and a button-and-bell arrangement for calling out an inhabitant of the saloon who will furnish anything drinkable they may call for, for the price. And yet, it is a felony to sell Indians intoxicating liquor!"

"I do not know of an area of ground of equal dimensions in the world that embodies more hell, (I do not speak irreverently) than the block north of Webb street and east of Main in Pendleton, including the closed alley, if testimony is to be believed. One missionary could devote his whole time—his Sundays and his week days, his days and his nights, his working season and his vacations—for years to come, in that section."

If you will station yourself at the corner where the city pound is located, some bright Saturday, you may likely see dozens of Indians passing in and out of the demi-monde quarter. They are going in for whisky, alcohol, beer and worse pollutions. These dark-skinned people never knew such sins until the white men came among them. Now, alas! they know it all too well. Whisky and scrofula, with other more dread diseases, are decimating the race.

"Drunk to blindness, the bleary eye notes not the approaching train, nor do the dulled ears catch its sound, till crash—and eternity has claimed its own. Or the unsteady foot totters upon the brink and the mill race swallows another victim; or the thick tongue slips out the hasty insult, the pistol flashes, and another unprepared soul is launched upon the billows of the great beyond."

Seventeen such deaths since I have been here—only a few years! It is terrible. The white man sometimes acquires an appetite for whisky—with the Indian it is no appetite—it is a passion. Every preacher, minister or priest in Pendleton owes it as a duty to himself, to his deeply offending race, and to his God, to get busy and fight this curse to the Indians.

"I am today sending a case to your district attorney for his action, wherein a man who came by the agency on business a few days ago, went on into Pendleton and obtained whisky, although it is a penitentiary crime to give or sell it to him, and become so drunk that he sold his brother's horse for a third of its value so he could buy more whisky."

"I am willing to aid the owner of recover the horse, but only on condition that the one who sold it shall be punished. These terms will be complied with, and that means only another penitentiary victim. Hundreds of such cases have come before me."

"Peo was one of the brightest Indian chiefs, a consummate orator, a skilled diplomat, a leader among the redmen of the Northwest; one day he got enough to reach the top, and now he is a physical and mental wreck—will probably end his days in an asylum—all due, as the physicians of your own town pronounced, to alcoholism."

CHARLES M. ROBINSON,
Clerk Umatilla Agency.

Parish Aid Society.

The Parish Aid Society will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Lee Moorhouse, and a full attendance is desired.

THE PERPETUAL WAR

There is always a fight going on in every human body between health and disease. On one side are poor food, bad air, over-work, worry, colds, accidents. On the other are sunshine, rest, cheerfulness and nourishment.

The reason Scott's Emulsion fights so powerfully for health is because it gives so much more nourishment than you can get in any other way. Get in the sunlight and try Scott's Emulsion.

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

ACADEMY FOOTBALL.

Team is Practicing for Active Work Later in the Season.

The Pendleton academy football club is rapidly shaping itself into an organization fit to meet its opponents on the gridiron. The boys are training daily and with the exception of the tackles the players have been assigned their positions. W. H. Bleakney is manager of the club and Hugh Blue is acting captain.

"We are prepared to meet either Weston, the Pendleton high school, or any other organization in our class," said Blue. "I believe we are developing a strong team." The line-up of the eleven at present is:

H. Blue, right end; Thompson, left end; Wright, right half; Russell, left half; Cargill, fullback; Ingle, center; Wade, Blue and Crowe, guards.

Brown Fellows.

Have you seen the brown men about town? We don't mean the little fellows who are making it so warm in Manchuria, but the well dressed fellows who buy their suits at the Peoples Warehouse Clothing Store.
